

A holiday built on giving.

Good design makes a difference. So this holiday season, Teknion is helping make a difference in your local community, with a contribution in your honor to Public Architecture. With over 650 architecture and design firms donating $25 million in pro bono design services through “The 1%” program of Public Architecture annually, this gift will far outlast the holiday fruitcake.

Public Architecture is a national nonprofit organization that provides pro bono design services to community centers, health clinics, libraries, schools, and social service agencies in low-income communities nationwide. Design is done by some of the country’s top firms. For more information, visit www.publicarchitecture.org.

Because we believe that good design is fundamentally democratic, we are enthusiastically supporting this initiative in your name. From the entire Teknion family, we wish you and yours the most joyous of holiday seasons.
